in the gaelic language, sin é (shin-a) means “this is it!”

And after visiting with us, we hope you will agree! In Ireland, a pub is far more than a bar...

a pub is a community gathering place - an overgrown “family room” where the patrons meet to share the latest news, laugh, and often times solve the worlds problems. For the Irish, the pub is like a second home - not for its beer, or stout, or libations, but for its environment of family and friends, laughter and good times. At the heart of the pub is the Irish philosphy that there are no strangers, but rather friends not yet met.

We at Sin é welcome you to sit, and eat, and perhaps hoist a pint or two. Loud laughter and rollicking times are welcome... rude behavior is not. Remember that like all Irish pubs, families with children are welcome, and patrons should please remember this when “choosing their words.”

So come, relax, and enjoy our establishment and be part of our family, because... Sin é!
